

I have worked in the web design field since 2001, first as a flash animator and web designer then as a webmaster, graphic designer and most recently an adjunct professor. I specialize in project proposals and scoping, intuitive consistent content structure and designing for content management systems. As an adjunct professor of web design I have had the opportunity to teach accessibility standards, time-saving tools like templates, third party plugins/embeds, and Cascading Style Sheets, as well as how to convey meaning and direct users with site/information design. I am currently building my experience with Wordpress customization, Content Management Systems and social networking tools.

My husband, Justin, a radiological technologist and ceramic sculptor, and I share a great little house near Curtis Park, where we enjoy our daughter Novella, a pup Chongo, and a cat, Jackimo. We love travel, friends, family, the arts, oenology and nature.
